A FLOORING SYSTEM WITH COMPONENTS DESIGNED TO WORK TOGETHER

One Manufacturer, One Warranty, One Solution

You already know the benefits of an engineered floor system: components that are straight and stable, floors that are even and resist shrinking and twisting, and, best of all, fewer callbacks. There's another advantage: a floor system that's offered by one manufacturer—LP. That means one-stop shopping with your distributor for ordering, customer service and problem resolution. And, when you purchase an LP Floor System, you get our comprehensive, transferable warranty that covers the entire system. No more tracking down multiple manufacturers if a problem occurs. Because LP manufactures every component of our engineered flooring system, you can be assured of quality products that work well with each other.

Save Time And Headaches

In this business, time is money. And the time you save in dealing with your floor system lets you concentrate on more important matters. Think of the convenience of ordering from a single source and knowing that your products will be delivered reliably and on schedule without costly interruptions. You'll have the benefit of LP's nationwide distribution network and a team of technical support staff to back you up. LP has been making engineered wood products for more than 25 years, and we've built a reputation for our dependable products and strong customer service. Our engineered floor system is even certified by a third party, APA—The Engineered Wood Association, to meet the APA Performance-Rated Floor Model.[®] So when you choose LP, you get more than great products and great service, you get peace of mind.

For Sub-Flooring, LP Offers Three Choices

What's the best sub-flooring for your project? That depends on the specifications and the climate. That's why LP offers three choices to meet your sub-flooring needs: LP[®] TopNotch[®] 250 Series Sub-Flooring, LP TopNotch 350 Series Sub-Flooring and LP TopNotch 450 Series Sub-Flooring.

Unlike other sub-flooring products, LP TopNotch's patented drainage system keeps water from collecting on the surface, reducing moisture absorption and edge swell. All three LP TopNotch products feature self-spacing tongue-and-groove edges, so installation is quick and easy. In addition, LP TopNotch 350 Series Sub-Flooring is backed by a 100-Day No-Sand Warranty and LP TopNotch 450 Series Sub-Flooring is backed by a 200-Day No-Sand Warranty. Please refer to LP TopNotch limited transferable warranties for details. Copies can be obtained at www.lpcorp.com or by calling 888.820.0325.

No wonder LP TopNotch is one of the best selling sub-floorings in the world.

LP TopNotch 250 Series Sub-Flooring: Offers excellent strength and moisture resistance.

LP TopNotch 350 Series Sub-Flooring: Offers excellent strength, superior moisture resistance, and a 100-Day No-Sand Warranty.

LP TopNotch 450 Series Sub-Flooring: Offers superior strength and moisture resistance and a 200-Day No-Sand Warranty.

LP I-joists start straight and stay straight. They're more uniform in strength, stiffness and size than solid sawn lumber and are less likely to warp, shrink, twist, split or crown. They're light in weight and come in longer lengths and deeper depths so floors can be designed with fewer pieces, saving installation and material costs.

LP LVL is ideal for beams and other primary load carrying applications. It can carry more load than solid sawn beams, so an average floor requires fewer beams overall. And, unlike traditional lumber beams, LP LVL is available in custom lengths and widths, as well as three grades.

An integral part of the framing package, LP Rim Board is precision cut to match the depths of LP I-joists. It's manufactured in lengths of 12' and 16', which make installation faster by reducing joining. And, it's pre-cut, eliminating the inaccuracies and time involved in ripping plywood rim.
